Local Policing Summary Bromley

People across London want more information about policing in their local area.

In particular you want to know how policing is delivered locally, how the police are performing and what the priorities for the police are, together with information about your local officers and how to contact them.

This local policing summary aims to do just that. By providing detailed information for each borough, the Metropolitan Police Authority (MPA) aims to keep you more informed about trends and developments in your area, and reassure you that we, and your local police, listen to what you tell us about the problems in your community.

Working in partnership to reduce crime

This annual local policing summary is produced by the MPA. Made up of 23 members who scrutinise and support the work of the Metropolitan Police Service (MPS), our role is to ensure that the views of Londoners are taken into account when deciding policing priorities and that London has the best possible police service to protect our communities.

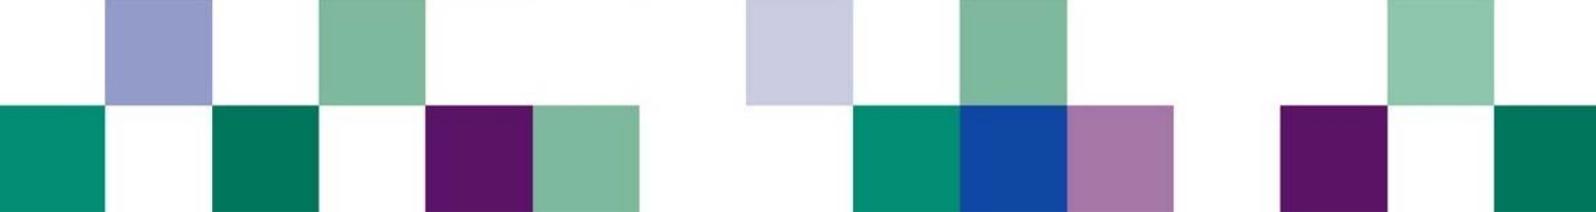

Although the Authority does not have any responsibility for operational policing, it is responsible for monitoring how well those services are delivered.

It is the Authority's job to ensure the Metropolitan Police perform to the best of their ability and are accountable to the people of London. The MPA also works to make sure local communities have a say in how they are policed.

Crime is at a ten year low in London

Primarily, the MPA exists to

- hold the Commissioner rigorously to account for improving the operational performance of the MPS
 - transform community engagement to help Londoners secure more responsive policing
 - work with the MPS to achieve cultural change throughout the service so that everyone in London can gain and retain confidence in policing
 - drive the MPS to make the most effective, efficient and cost conscious use of all its resources

Metropolitan Police Authority

The MPA sets and monitors the police budget, which includes agreeing the level of council tax that you pay towards policing, and appoints senior officers to the MPS.

The MPA also sets annual priorities and targets for the police and we hold them to account for their performance against these.

The Authority has achieved real benefits for the people of London. We now have record numbers of police officers – over 31,000 - working to keep the capital safe, and London was first to introduce Police Community Support Officers (PCSOs), with over 4,000 now providing extra public reassurance and tackling anti-social behaviour in every ward across London.

If you would like more information about the ways in which the MPA works or would like to make any comments, please visit the Authority's website: www.mpa.gov.uk or contact us on 020 7202 0202.

Looking back on 2007/08

Summary performance achievements

The MPS has achieved a number of successes against the objectives and targets set for 2007/08. The majority of the priorities and targets set by the MPA were met, particularly in terms of sanction detections, criminal justice and terrorism.

Some of the performance achievements between April 2007 and March 2008:

- the overall sanction detection rate reached 25.1% against a 24% target. The MPS continues to show increases year on year;

(Sanction detection – where an offender has been identified and a legal action / 'sanction' has been taken.)

- the MPS exceeded its target for offences brought to justice (OBTJ) obtaining 209,107 against a target of 197,200;
- the MPS achieved a reduction of 8.8% for recorded crimes that compare to those surveyed by the British Crime Survey (BCS). This exceeded the reduction target of 5.5%.

However, some targets were not met, most notably:

- gun enabled crime decreased by 1.4% against a 5% reduction target;
 - public satisfaction across the MPS was 77% against a 82.5% target;
 - the gap between the satisfaction of White victims (78.8%) and Black and Minority Ethnic victims (71.8%) was 7 percentage points. This missed the target of a 5.3 percentage point gap.

Setting policing priorities for London

Policing London Business Plan 2008/11

The three year business plan sets out how the MPS will deliver against the policing priorities of government, the Mayor of London and the people who live and work in London. Targets are set and monitored throughout the year to ensure the MPS continues to reduce crime and increase public safety.

The strategic priorities in the plan are to:

- make our services more accessible and improve people's experience of their contact with us
- make our neighbourhoods safer through local and city-wide problem solving and partnership working to reduce crime, anti-social behaviour and road casualties
- enhance our counter terrorism capacity and capability
- plan for, and effectively police, major events in London and prepare for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games
- reduce serious violence and protect young people
- disrupt criminal networks and reduce the harm caused by drugs

Bromley: local information

Message from Borough Commander Charles Griggs

"I view the last 12 months as being a great success in terms of unprecedented crime reductions and excellent detection work. Overall crime in Bromley fell by 11.4% - that's 3,229 fewer crimes in the borough. These figures really do speak for themselves and I am proud of our efforts to reduce crime on the borough.

"All officers and staff work tirelessly to reduce crime and disorder and to bring offenders to justice. The results from our victim satisfaction survey also improved dramatically over the year, from 61% satisfaction with initial police action to 75%, and from 46% satisfaction with police follow-up to 62%. These were the biggest increases in victim satisfaction in London.

"The challenge now is to maintain that performance and to increase the confidence that residents have in our ability to make Bromley one of the safest boroughs in London. Making Bromley safer, and providing quality policing services is our top priority. We will work tirelessly, in partnership, to achieve this. I look forward to serving the people of Bromley for another year."

Bromley: local police initiatives

Police officers in Bromley will begin using head and body cameras from September 2008 as part of a six-month trial.

During the trial 150 officers will have access to the cameras and will use them to film incidents ranging from acts of anti-social behavior to disorderly conduct around bars and clubs. Response team officers, Safer Transport teams and Safer Neighbourhoods teams will all try out the cameras, which will be fitted to specially adapted kit.

The cameras can record everything the police officers see and do and the evidence captured will be used in court to secure more convictions. The footage can be viewed by the offender, their defence team and the Judge and Jury, effectively enabling the crime scene to be brought into the courtroom.

Additionally the use of the cameras is expected to reduce the number of complaints made against officers – complaints have fallen in custody units across London since the introduction of full camera coverage in custody suites.

Chief Inspector Marshall Kent, said: "We are very pleased to be involved in the pilot as we are always looking at innovative ways of reducing crime. This includes improving neighbourhood policing and making use of new technology. I am particularly excited by the prospect of improving outcomes for domestic violence and nighttime alcohol related assault, given the high level of harm that is caused by this type of crime. The message to the public is to enjoy yourselves but don't misbehave because you don't know when you may be caught on camera. The cameras will help to ensure people in our communities are safer".

Partnership working: getting involved

Help us to understand the community's views on policing in your area

The MPA has a statutory duty to consult and engage with the communities of London and to give a voice to local people on policing, priorities, concerns and the future direction of the MPS. Therefore the MPA has established Community Police Engagement Groups (CPEG) in each of the 32 London boroughs (In some London boroughs these groups are known as Community Safety Boards (CSB) or Community Police Consultative Groups (CPCGs)). The primary aims of the CPEGs are to consult with their local police, Safer Neighbourhoods Panels, the MPA, key stakeholders in Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships about strategic policing, including consultation on the annual policing plan development, implementation of Neighbourhood Policing, and crime and disorder reduction.

CPEGs are intended to be representative of the local population, and more particularly those groups that interact with the police in disproportionate numbers. Their activities are not limited to committee work but include active community engagement in neighbourhoods and with local groups.

If you would like to get involved in your local CPEG you can find out more information at www.mpa.gov.uk/partnerships

Partnership working: getting involved

Independent Custody Visitors (ICVs) are ordinary members of the local community appointed to make sure that the welfare of people detained in police stations is maintained. They call at police stations unannounced, speak to detainees and write short reports about their visit. Their recommendations can require the police to make improvements in this area.

ICVs play a valuable role in maintaining public confidence in this important aspect of policing. They work with others as part of a local panel and help the MPA, which oversees custody visiting in London, to make sure that detainees are treated appropriately and that their rights are respected.

ICVs must be aged 18 or over. If you would like to find out more about how you can get involved, please visit the MPA website or call freephone 0808 100 1036.

The MPA Stop and Search Community Monitoring Network (CMN)

Stop and Search measures are useful in the fight against crime, but they are also controversial powers for many people. The MPA supports Stop and Search Monitoring groups in all 32 boroughs and facilitates a London wide CMN as a means of building and sustaining trust and confidence in the appropriate exercise of Stop and Search powers.

The work of these groups is crucial and they rely on the input and involvement of volunteers. If you would like to get involved in a local or pan-London group to monitor and influence the way Stop and Search is used in London, please call 020 7202 0233 or email stopandsearch@mpa.gov.uk for more information.
