

Local Policing Summary

Havering

A message from Kit Malthouse

When Boris was elected he promised to refocus the MPA and the Met on fighting crime. Our strategic plan, Met Forward, has done just that, and London has become safer as a result.

Overall crime has fallen by 100,000 offences over the last two years, reductions have been made in violence and murder, and serious acquisitive crime, which includes robbery, has fallen to the lowest levels in ten years.

But it doesn't yet feel better on London's streets. The capital still has serious problems, particularly knife crime. While the number of teenage killings have fallen, there are still too many young people dying or being injured. Each event is a shocking reminder of the mountain we still have to climb.

But there is a huge amount of effort now being brought to bear on these problems. We are making progress and Londoners are responding with increased confidence in local policing and more people feeling safe in their own neighbourhood.

So this policing summary is designed to give you a snapshot of how your local cops are doing and help you make up your own mind. If you have any issues you would like to raise please do let me know by writing or emailing kit.malthouse@london.gov.uk

There is much still to be done, and because of the economic climate the year ahead will be tough. We will need to work smarter, more efficiently and in closer partnership if we are to reduce crime yet further. With your help and support I know we can have an even better year.

You have my commitment that we will strain every sinew in the pursuit of your safety and that of all Londoners.

Kit Malthouse

Deputy Mayor for Policing and Chair of the Metropolitan Police Authority

Met Forward: the MPA strategic mission

MPA

Met Forward

The job of the MPA is to fight crime by getting the best out of the Met. To ensure we make real progress the MPA has introduced Met Forward, a three year strategic mission setting out how we want the Met to develop and perform.

The key purpose of Met Forward is to provide clear direction and support the Met as it works to make London a safer city. Many priorities set out in Met Forward are based on what communities have told us and will ensure that victim care and customer satisfaction are at the core of our shared values.

Above all, increasing the public's confidence in policing is a key priority for Met Forward, working to ensure Londoners feel confident and safe in their neighbourhoods and shared public spaces. Met Forward reflects Londoners' concerns for policing and sets out our ambition to provide strong leadership, open and transparent accountability and effective working with partners and the community.

Making people feel safe is not just down to the Met; many others, including the public, contribute to an atmosphere of order and security and we must work together to deliver success.

Since Boris Johnson became Mayor of London there has been renewed action to tackle crime priorities, focussing on knife crime, safety on public transport, removing dangerous dogs from our streets and tackling gangs and violence in town centres. The MPA has also introduced crime mapping to inform local communities of what is actually happening in their neighbourhoods and overseen changes in leadership at New Scotland Yard to inject new vigour into the Met. Met Forward encapsulates all this work and more, reflecting our goal to make sure the police fight crime effectively.

It is hoped that if we get this right, people who live, work and visit London will:

- understand there is less crime and criminality;
- feel more confident about policing in London; and
- recognise that money is being well spent.

These outcomes might seem obvious at first sight, but they often become lost in the day-to-day activity of running our police force and reacting to events. Constantly reminding ourselves about the objectives of our collective mission will help us focus on what is important. Everything that we do must be directed to these three objectives.

The MPA's work

Policing London Business Plan 2010/2013

The MPA sets the three year business plan that determines out how the MPS will deliver against the policing priorities of the government, the Mayor of London and the people who live and work in the capital. Targets are set and monitored throughout the year to ensure the MPS continues to reduce crime and increase public safety.

The strategic priorities in the plan are to:

- * convince communities we are on their side
- * crack down on violence
- * the right service at the right price
- * reduce crime and catch criminals
- * deliver security on the streets

For more information please visit www.mpa.gov.uk/publications/policingplans

The MPA and MPS carry out a great deal of community engagement work at ward, borough and pan-London level. When developing and assessing our community engagement work we must ensure it remains relevant to Londoners, so we have recently produced a joint 'Community Engagement Commitment' which explains how we will improve the way we listen to and respond to the needs of Londoners.

For further information on our 'Community Engagement Commitment' please contact review@mpa.gov.uk or call 0207 202 0202.

Looking back on 2009/10

Summary performance achievements

The MPS has achieved a number of successes against the objectives and targets set for 2009/10.

Some of the performance achievements between April 2009 and March 2010:

- a reduction in serious acquisitive crime (residential burglary, robbery and motor vehicle crime) of 3.5% or 6919 fewer crimes, exceeding the 2.5% reduction target;
- public confidence across the MPS was 53.1% against a 51.4 % target;
- a reduction in theft from motor vehicle crime of 7.9% or 6195 fewer crimes, exceeding the 2.5% reduction target.

However, some targets were not met, most notably:

- a target to reduce gun crime by 4.2%: there were 429 more crimes, a 14.2% increase;
  - a target to reduce serious youth violence by 4.7%: there were 105 more crimes, a 1.6% increase;
  - the gap between the satisfaction of White victims (78.8%) and Black and Minority Ethnic victims (73.9%) was 4.9 percentage points: this missed the target of a 3.8 percentage point gap.

Havering: local information

Message from Borough Commander Michael Smith

Over the last 12 months there have been 878 fewer victims of crime in Havering. We have reduced serious acquisitive crime by 294 offences and prevented significant rises in gun crime, knife crime and serious youth violence. Overall there have been 4,555 fewer crimes in the borough since 2005. We have, in addition, detected one in four recorded crimes during the last year. In the last 12 months, however, we have had a further challenging year with rises in residential burglary and most serious violence - a trend we intend to stop.

We have continued to improve our service in many areas, including changing shift patterns to match our resources to demand, particularly with regard to anti-social behaviour, responding to calls for help from the public, and improving our satisfaction rates for those who require our services. The results reflect the hard work and commitment of my staff combined with the effective contribution and joint working of all our partners and members of Havering's communities.

I very much look forward over the coming year to meeting the challenges of reducing crime, improving criminal justice outcomes and delivering a customer service that Havering's communities want.

Havering: local police initiatives

In June 2009 Havering began the 'Street a Week' initiative, one of the first of its kind in London. The aim is to visit every Havering resident to establish what specific concerns they have about their area and provides a real opportunity for Havering police to understand local issues and engage with all members of our community.

By doing this we hope to demonstrate that the police and local partners are dealing with the crime and anti-social behaviour incidents that really matter to residents and thereby build real confidence in our services. Early results show that many residents do have high levels of confidence in what we do and we will continue to convince local people that we are on their side by continuing to listen to their concerns in this way.

Have your say on policing in London

How you can help to set London's policing priorities

Public consultation plays an important part in setting the annual policing priorities for London and we want to encourage more and more Londoners to participate. All organisations do best when they listen to the people they serve and the police are no different.

Participating in this annual consultation is a vital tool to help restore the vital link between our local communities and their police service.

Have your say on policing in London by logging on to the MPA website:

www.mpa.gov.uk/publications/policingplans/haveyoursay

This year we also want to hear from more members of London's business communities. If you own or work in a business in London please log on to:

Partnership working: CPEGs

Help us to understand the community's views on policing in your area

The MPA has a duty to consult and engage with London's communities and give a voice to local people on policing priorities, their concerns and the future direction of the Met. To facilitate this, Community Police Engagement Groups (CPEGs) - in some areas known as Community Safety Boards or Community Police Consultative Groups - exist in each borough.

The primary aims of CPEGs are to consult with local police, Safer Neighbourhoods Panels, the MPA and key stakeholders in Community Safety Partnerships about strategic policing. This can include consultation on developing the annual policing plan, the implementation of neighbourhood policing, and crime and disorder reduction. Their activities also include active community engagement in neighbourhoods and with local groups.

CPEGs are intended to be representative of the local population and we would particularly like to encourage greater representation from across the diverse range of black and minority ethnic communities, young people, the disabled community and from local businesses and chambers of commerce.

If you would like to get your voice heard, get involved in your local CPEG. Visit our website for more information at www.mpa.gov.uk/partnerships
